

Letter no 5

Morning All

You may wonder why I did not send this out yesterday, but it was probably because I was reading and sleeping! As part of my weekend off I decided to take Monday off just to slack and read and chill and suffice it to say that is exactly what I did. All ready to go this morning as I have been on the run since arriving!

I actually attended Church on Sunday at St Andrews in Brakpan – I also didn't know they existed! – to offer advice and some guidance. And each time I attend another Church I realise how blessed we are with the people we have and other resources that we have too. My interim moderator responsibilities are growing – much to my dismay; but again a reminder that God is in control of all but that this is truly my Church home.

The men's bathrooms are nearing completion and the new ceiling is in with the final touches tomorrow. And (I am scared to say this) but the ladies bathroom should also finally be complete by the time Sunday morning comes! This Church is really busy as I planted up the garden of remembrance last week and if you didn't have a look please do as it really looks good now. If you wish to donate any largish pots please feel free to do so, as we have a few potless plants!

Happy birthday and anniversary to all and may you be richly blessed. A reminder about the ordination of Peter Eta as an elder on Sunday, so please make an effort to support what I believe is St Andrew's youngest elder yet.

God bless
Love
Ruth
